TEMPLE ISRAEL LIFELONG LEARNING INSTITUTE

Summer/Fall 2026

Welcome to TILLI: Temple Israel Lifelong Learning Institute – A Program of Temple Israel of Boston

Temple Israel Lifelong Learning Institute (TILLI) is a vibrant, peer-led learning community for older adults. Rooted in the mission of Temple Israel of Boston, “Living Judaism together through discovery, dynamic spirituality, and righteous impact,” TILLI embodies a commitment to community, lifelong exploration, and meaningful connection.

TILLI Summer/Fall 2026 Season

Please join us for Summer 2026 events including the MIT museum, Boston Public Library, Studios Without Walls outdoor exhibit, and a Tanglewood concert. In addition, there will be a TILLI Qabbalat Shabbat “nosher” on Friday, August 7th before services. Registration for all events is online at www.tilli.org.

Fall 2026 includes 12 study groups, 6 in the morning and 6 in the afternoon, led by our committed volunteer study group leaders. There will be five Lunch and Learn sessions with fascinating speakers presenting a variety of topics.

As we are a peer-led institute, we welcome your input and participation on any level. Consider leading or co-leading a study group (coaching available), joining a committee, or helping us to recruit new study group leaders and participants.

You may also honor or recognize TILLI by donating to the Gale Raphael TILLI Fund which supports our important work. (See back inside cover for a QR code.)

Who Can Join:

TILLI is open to all. We warmly welcome Temple Israel members, members of other synagogues, lay people, and those new to our community.

Member Pricing:

Temple Israel members receive discounted registration of $120. Individuals who belong to other synagogues are also eligible for this member rate.

Non Member Pricing:

Participants who are not members of a synagogue pay a rate of $150.

Registration is online only at TILLI.org, which accepts credit cards. You may make a check payable to Temple Israel and mail to TILLI-Temple Israel, 477 Longwood Ave, Boston, MA 02215. Please register before mailing in a check.

As always, your registration fee includes parking, lunch, and coffee/tea before the study groups. Come to TILLI’s Fall Welcome Breakfast, Thursday, October 15th, 10:00 - 10:50 a.m. Scholarships are available on request. Please contact the TILLI staff for scholarship and/or other questions/support. (tilli@tisrael.org or call 617-566-3960)

Hope to see you soon,
Yetta Katz and Debra Mandel

Morning Study Groups

► The Life and Music of Bruce Springsteen

Debbie Berlanstein (dberlanstein@gmail.com)

With his emergence from the clubs of Asbury Park, New Jersey in the 1970s, Bruce Springsteen was soon hailed as “the future of rock and roll.” He became an international icon in the 1980s and continues to produce what many call the soundtrack to American life.

His career follows the social, cultural and political currents of American life, and through his lyrics he examines just what the American dream truly means. This course will use audio, video and autobiography for participants to appreciate the joy he brings to his many fans and his continuing impact on American music and society.

“I liked the fact that the presenter came prepared with a focus for the class, but was also flexible to allow members of the class to share their memories and interpretations of a time we all lived through and knew well.”

— TILLI Participant

Reading: Born to Run by Bruce Springsteen (autobiography available in print and audio). Readings will require one to two hours per session.

► Remembering World War II Through Music

Paula Folkman (pepfolk@comcast.net) and

Peggy Morrison (prmmorrison@verizon.net)

Can music bear witness to history? How does music convey memory? Can music be a way of bearing witness to the Holocaust? In Time's Echo, Jeremy Eichler, former chief music critic of The Boston Globe, discusses how works by Arnold Schoenberg, Benjamin Britten, Dimitri Shostakovich, and Richard Strauss answer these questions. These composers lived through World War II and created musical works which embody their experiences during this period and the cultural milieu in which they occurred. About 2 hours of reading a week.

Reading: We will read and discuss Eichler's book, Time's Echo, and listen to the works he references to see how the past speaks to the present—a new way of listening to history.

See Study Group Leader biographies on pages 11-12.

Morning Study Groups

► Election '26: Key Issues Impacting Democracy

Larry Koff (larry.koff@outlook.com) and Serena Fujita (sfujita@bucknell.edu)

As the November '26 election draws near, many of us stay up late at night trying to understand key issues, policy ideas, and how well the government is functioning so that we can more effectively discuss our concerns and advocate for our perspectives. We will consider six issues and the related trade-offs: 1. The key issues behind Massachusetts ballot propositions this year; 2. The economy and affordability, including housing and health care; 3. Democracy and tyranny: gerrymandering, the shadow court, and the rule of law; 4. Immigration and ICE; 5. The Red and Blue State divide over social and regulatory policy including reproductive rights, LGBT+ rights, climate and energy policies; and 6. Does Christian nationalism fit into the American democratic tradition?

Reading: Articles, news clips, excerpts from relevant books will be available online. Students are encouraged to bring in various articles for the class.

► Genes: The Inherited Code of Life

Barbara Koff (barbara.smith.koff@gmail.com)

"The SGL* was so enthusiastic and knowledgeable about the subject that it was contagious!"

— TILLI Participant

How do genes work and interact with the environment? We will look at the history of scientific discoveries, culminating in the ability to read and edit genes as well as the social, moral, and ethical issues surrounding heredity. We will look at genetics and molecular biology, with slides to illustrate the astonishing complexity that regulates our identities and heredity. We will use the book and Ken Burns documentary both called The Gene: An Intimate History. The text is written for a general audience, weaving science, personal, and social history. The reading assignments will be between 50-100 pages. Additional short films and the Ken Burns' film will be available by shared links for further explanation of science.

Reading: Mukherjee, Siddhartha. The Gene: An Intimate History, Scribner, 2016., Thrift books or World of Books $6.00-$8.00. Ken Burns' video of The Gene: An Intimate History will be available by email.

*SGL=Study Group Leader

Morning Study Groups

► Short Stories: The 2025 O. Henry Prize Winners

Bob McCorkle (mccorkle49@yahoo.com)

We'll read five O. Henry Prize-winning short stories and also two stories from O. Henry himself. The O. Henry Award is given to twenty of the best stories from American and Canadian periodicals each year. We'll meet a Kentucky farmer with little need to speak, a lottery winner stuck in her past, a Nigerian family in crisis, a woman with six rifles and three bibles in her childhood bedroom, and a heroic safecracker. There will be one story a week to read at home.

Reading: Five of the stories come from The Best Short Stories 2025: The O. Henry Prize Winners, edited by Edward P. Jones. I'll email the O. Henry pieces to the students.

► Shakespeare's "The Winter's Tale" Romantic: A Play For All Genres

Bennett Simon (1933bsimon@gmail.com)

We will explore Shakespeare's late play, The Winter's Tale. It is his play par excellence that defies any characterization of genre. There is painful tragedy as we helplessly watch a king's jealousy cause the deaths of his wife and son. There is also deep remorse, forgiveness and a magical reversal of the wife's death. Interlaced are farce, pastoral romance, a trickster, and a bear and Time as characters. We will read aloud scenes of the play as the basis for our discussions. Film clips of the play will be viewed selectively. Throughout, we will consider the different emotional reactions the play elicits. And have some fun! You will read the play's successive acts, about one to two hours per week.

Reading: Folger edition is the text of The Winter's Tale containing convenient notes explaining vocabulary, good print and modest cost.

Afternoon Study Groups

► F. Scott Fitzgerald and The Great Gatsby— More Than All That Jazz

Theresa Ammirati (tpamm@conncoll.edu)

The Great Gatsby is inextricably tied to the Jazz Age but is much more than that. In creating Gatsby, and the magnificence of his hope, Fitzgerald also took a stark look at class, the often-corrupting power of wealth, and the American Dream. Although this novel is not without flaws (its casual racism among them), we'll look at why it has become an American classic. We'll discuss the novel along with several of Fitzgerald's other writings and will also look at how Fitzgerald's life influenced this book. If possible, we'll also look at some of the filmic representations of the novel. There will be 30-50 pages of reading a week.

"Theresa Ammirati was so engaging. She chose interesting readings for this course and played music from the 60's as well as playing videos like Martin Luther Kings' I Have a Dream speech."

— TILLI Participant

Reading: The Great Gatsby, F. Scott Fitzgerald— available at any bookstore, on Amazon, and in the library. Edition doesn't matter.

► Conflict and Peacemaking Between Israel and Its Neighbors

Ted Greenwood (tedgreenwood@msn.com)

This Study Group will be Part 1 of a two-part series delving deeply into the history of conflict and peacemaking between Israel and its Arab neighbors and the differing perspectives of the many protagonists. We will begin with the birth of Arab nationalism and modern Zionism in the late 19th century and end with the high point of peacemaking in 1994. Weekly reading will vary from 35 to 70 pages. Each study section will be mostly discussion and will assume that participants have done the reading. Part 2 in the spring will continue the drama to the present. Participants can take one or both study groups.

Reading: Abdel Monem Said Aly, Shai Feldman, and Khalil Shikaki, Arabs and Israelis: Conflict and Peacemaking in the Middle East. Available from the publisher, Bloomsbury Publishing Inc., for $54.85, Amazon and through libraries.

Afternoon Study Groups

► Being and Thinking with a Mindful Lens

Nancy Karp (eggplantnk@gmail.com) and Marilyn Pritikin (mpritikin@gmail.com)

Living in this chaotic world today, many of us are feeling stressed. Although we aren't able to control the world around us, we can learn and practice ways to control our stress with the goal of feeling better emotionally and physically. We will share a variety of tools to help participants learn which might work best for them. Class will include a combination of lecture, exercises and discussion. Participation and sharing by study group members will enhance the experience. There will be about an hour of reading weekly. Videos and articles will be offered by email.

Reading: Breathwork: How to Use Your Breath to Change Your Life by Andrew Smart Chronicle Books, New and Used books available at Amazon and other vendors.

► Through a Glass Darkly: Irish Short Fiction

Helen Kolsky (helen.kolsky@gmail.com)

James Joyce, William Trevor and Claire Keegan, three masters of Irish short fiction, provide us with brilliantly crafted examples of the possibilities of this genre. By means of detailed reading and layered discussion, we will explore the cultural, religious, political and social themes that fuel the narrative. The brevity of the works allows for close reading and re-reading to draw out the mastery and depth of meaning within. This study group will rely on discussion. Participants should plan on at least two hours of reading per week.

Reading: Selected stories from Dubliners by James Joyce, Foster (a novella) by Claire Keegan, The Women by William Trevor along with two or three additional titles. All are easily available from the public library or for purchase online.

Afternoon Study Groups

► The World of Sepharad: The Jews of Spain

Natalie Schatz (schatz.natalie@gmail.com)

Jews lived in Spain for over a thousand years until the expulsion in 1492. This study group will discuss the period of convivencia (coexistence) when three religions (Islam, Judaism, and Christianity) created a culture of tolerance in Medieval Spain and the contribution that Jews made to this culture. A major part of the study group will concentrate on the 11th to 13th centuries, considered the Golden Age for Jews in Spain. It was a period of the great thinkers such as Maimonides and the poets Yehuda Halevi and Shmuel H. Nagid. The group will learn about the dispersal of the Sephardim after 1492. There will be about two hours of reading a week.

"I loved the exposure to the wonderful creativity of the plays. They gave me a view to a variety of things I hadn't experienced.

I also loved the discussion, which gave greater depth and understanding to my experience of the plays."

— TILLI Participant

Reading: The Jews of Spain: a History of the Sephardic Experience, Jane Gerber. Thrift Books, Amazon $17. Ornament of the World, Maria Rosa Menocal, Amazon $14. Both books are available from local libraries.

► Jewish Lives Through Film

Marlene Yesley (moyesley@aol.com) and Susan Yesley (suzy.yesley123@gmail.com)

This course explores Jewish identity, memory, humor, ethics, displacement, love and community through six distinctive films spanning comedy, drama, historical reckoning and contemporary storytelling. Together, these films reveal the richness and complexity of Jewish experience across generations and cultures. The study group will watch the films at home and then discuss them in the study group. These are the films that are being considered: Crossing Delancy, The Producers, Judgement at Nuremberg, Everything is Illuminated, A Serious Man and The Bands Visit. Films are approximately two hours long.

Reading: Films will be available to stream; some may require a nominal rental fee. These films are also available in DVD format and can be obtained from local libraries. There may be some readings and other videos that will be sent via email.

Study Group Leaders

Theresa Ammirati (F. Scott Fitzgerald and The Great Gatsby—More Than All That Jazz) retired from Connecticut College, where she was a dean, member of the English Department, and co-director of the American Studies program. A participant in several enjoyable TILLI study groups, she has previously offered a course on The Sixties. The Great Gatsby is one of her favorite novels and she hopes this class will show why.

Debbie Berlanstein (The Life and Music of Bruce Springsteen) has a Masters of Library Science and has worked as a college reference and medical librarian for more than 40 years. She recently retired as the Associate Director of Tufts University's Hirsh Health Sciences Library in Boston.

Ted Greenwood (Conflict and Peacemaking Between Israel and Its Neighbors) has taught courses on international security and US defense policy at MIT and Columbia. He has a longstanding interest in Israeli politics and security and the challenges that Israel faces as part of the Middle East.

Serena Fujita (Election '26: Key Issues Impacting Democracy) has a background and interest in history, political science, philosophy, religion and social justice. Serena is a graduate of Queens College and Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion. Serena was ordained as a Reform rabbi in 2000 and worked at Bucknell University as the Jewish chaplain. Serena has taught courses at the Social Justice College at Bucknell and at TILLI.

Paula Folkman, (Remembering WWII Through Music) holds a B.A. and M.A.T. in music theory, history and education. She has been a pianist, choral singer, teacher, editor, accompanist, choir director and coach.

Nancy Karp (Being and Thinking with a Mindful Lens) worked as a Social Worker for the State of MA and at Jewish Vocational Services with refugees and adult learners. In her retirement she enjoys volunteering, making art and taking nature walks.

Larry Koff (Election '26: Key Issues Impacting Democracy) has a master's degree in urban planning and worked as a city planner for the Boston Redevelopment Authority and principal for his own consulting firm, Larry Koff and Associates. In this capacity, Larry facilitated community planning processes to address a broad range of economic, housing, environment, and transportation issues. Larry has taught courses in TILLI on regional planning, racism, transportation, and the economy.

Barbara Smith Koff (Genes: The Inherited Code of Life), an Emeritus Professor of Biochemistry at Boston University School of Medicine, taught medical and graduate students molecular biology. She led research grants on collagen gene regulation in wound healing, tumors and fibrosis using DNA cloning, molecular biology, cell biology, and transgenic mice.

Study Group Leaders

Helen Kolsky (Through a Glass Darkly: Irish Short Fiction) has degrees in English and American Literature and Communications. She taught English on the secondary and community college level in New York City. She has led many study groups at TILLI, most recently on the Israel/Palestine conflict.

Bob McCorkle (Short Stories: The 2025 O. Henry Prize Winners) is a retired third grade teacher who has also taught adult literacy. This is his fifth TILLI course.

Peggy Morrison (Remembering WWII Through Music) has presented several study groups dealing with how visual art and literature preserve historical events as well as several centered on Arnold Schoenberg and his milieu.

Marilyn Turck Pritikin (Being and Thinking with a Mindful Lens) is a recently retired Marriage and Family Therapist. She was a Social Worker, a developer and coordinator of therapeutic Big Brother-Big Sister programs for the Chicago JCC and Director of a Sr adult program, at the Rogers Park JCC in Chicago. Her nascent jewelry business is called Gem and Rock art | jewelry.

Natalie Schatz (The World of Sepharad: The Jews of Spain) spent many years as an academic librarian and taught Library and Information Science. She has a lifelong love of literature. At TILLI she has led study groups on Jewish culture and literature.

Bennett Simon (Shakespeare's "The Winter's Tale" Romantic: A Play For All Genres) is a retired psychiatrist and psychoanalyst with a lifelong interest in drama, especially Greek tragedy and Shakespeare. At Harvard, he taught "Tragic Drama and Human Conflict" for some twenty years. He is also a consumer and provider of good jokes.

Marlene Yesley (Jewish Lives Through Film), a retired language teacher/administrator, has led study groups in TILLI and co-directed it. A lifelong film lover, she has been leading a monthly film group at Newbridge on the Charles for the last six years. For fun she reads, binge watches Netflix programs and plays bridge and canasta.

Suzy Yesley (Jewish Lives Through Film) is a former third grade teacher. She began her career in Walpole where she won the "Sallie Mae outstanding first year teacher" award. She then taught in Newton, until she started her family. She has three grown sons. Her hobbies include knitting, reading and watching movies.
